Never really having any formal training in art as a young person, I bravely decided to study it in college. It was there that my sketches and doodles served me well as I sampled various media. I concentrated mostly on life drawing and finally dipped my toe into painting and the world of color. I paint mostly in oil, from life, photo inspiration, or just out in a field. I continue to learn more about color with each painting of a landscape, still life, portrait or floral. However, my first love of drawing is always there in every color loaded stroke of the brush.
